

Pet Insurance – To Insure or Not?

Two Years ago I came across a product not many people would have even heard of – AFS Pet Insurance. This company have been instrumental in working with Positive Response and were the first to insure owner's pets against tick protection thanks to my insistence. While there are many dog insurance companies out there, I can honestly say these guys are the elite and the best. They are prompt in paying out, have a fantastic product and most importantly listen to what it is we have to say.

That is why I am so insistent that YOU the owners look after your pets and YOUR pockets!!

Here is one clients story – this mishap happened in March 2010.

Hello Dee, Thank you for all of your help with Dupree. We want to give you an update on our puppy.

On Tuesday night Dupree and Mick were playing and Dupree ran into Micks Leg with her chest. She then bounced away from his leg and let out a mighty cry. We had no idea what had happened as she hit her chest but would not place her left leg on the ground. We rushed her to the emergency vet at Underwood and they examined her and told us she had Hyper extended her Tibia and pulled the ligaments off the bone! Our poor baby. She had her Leg operated on yesterday and a pin placed, and now has a lovely pink plaster on her leg. We picked her up this morning and the specialist said she will make a full recovery but must have lots of rest.

Thankfully AFS Pet Med insure paid straight away for emergency and accidents as we have just paid a vet bill for $3100.

Please let this be another reminder for all pet owners to get insured. Dee if it was not for you reinforcing insurance to us on our last training day, we would have been out of pocket a lot of money.

Thank you for all your help and I have attached a few little pics of our baby.

Sarah and Mick

Note from Dee

We wish Dupree a speedy recovery. In the meantime keep training even though it will be stationary work. Dupree will need lots of enrichment and mental stimulation to keep her going. All of us at Positive Response look forward to seeing Dupree recover quickly and rejoin us for her ongoing education.
